INTRODUCING THE PAI PLUS

NOW IT'S EVEN BETTER

The Personality Assessment Inventory™ (PAI®) has 22 nonoverlapping scales that cover the constructs most relevant to a broad-based assessment of mental disorders. Now with the introduction of the PAI Plus, there are even more ways to interpret PAI data.

The PAI Plus takes the existing PAI items and gives users an updated way to interpret the data. Using the PAI, an objective inventory of adult personality, the new report offers:

- DSM-5® update: Updated diagnostic possibilities align with the criteria.
- Alternative Model Profile: An optional new profile provides scores in accordance with the Alternative Model for Personality Disorders.
- Additional supplemental indices: Based on academic research, 15 new supplemental indices provide additional profile information related to negative and positive distortion and random responding. Supplemental clinical indicators provide profile information related to suicidality, aggression, neurological difficulties, presence of ADHD, and more.
- Context-specific norm groups: Including bariatric surgery candidates, child custody evaluations, chronic pain patients, college students, deployed military, egg donors/gestational carriers, motor vehicle accident claimants, police applicants, and potential kidney donors. Using an optional feature, users can select a profile overlay to compare the context-specific group profile to an examinee's profile.
- Updated report: An updated look and feel create a streamlined and modern-looking report.

A manual supplement details the research, theory, and development behind this update.
