Continue serving your clients seamlessly, comprehensively, and efficiently

- RIAS-2 and RIST-2 components have been minimally modified and packaged digitally, and step-by-step videoconferencing instructions are included to allow you to continue assessing your clients for intelligence and its major components in remote settings.
- An equivalency study (Wright, 2018) between the RIAS-2 paper-and-pencil format and digital version produced positive results for all subtests except the supplemental speeded processing subtests—hence, they are excluded from the Remote.
- One downloadable digital stimulus book is shared via videoconferencing with your student or client.
- An included white paper, which should be downloaded prior to administration, describes detailed remote administration procedures for the RIAS-2 and RIST-2.
