EDDT™
Emotional Disturbance
Decision Tree™

Get three perspectives
from one instrument

with the EDDT

Does your student meet the IDEA criteria for emotional disturbance?

Now it's even easier to determine if your student meets the criteria for special education by assessing from the teacher, parent, and student perspectives. The EDDT materials have been completely redesigned and streamlined to make your assessment experience easier, with all three forms (Teacher, Parent, Self-Report) now addressed in one manual.

EDDT™

PURPOSE Assess emotional disturbance from the teacher's, parent's, or student's perspective

AGE 5–18 years

FORMAT Paper and pencil; online administration & scoring via PARiConnect

TIME 20 minutes; immediate scoring via PARiConnect

QUAL B

The first instrument of its kind to provide a standardized approach to the assessment of emotional disturbance

FLEXIBLE ADMINISTRATION

- Digital administration—Administering via PARiConnect is easier than ever. Choose which form to administer and/or which report to generate after you purchase.

- Print administration—A hybrid approach allows you to use the paper item/response booklet in combination with the digital score report. Simply hand-enter item responses into PARiConnect for instant report generation. Paper forms and digital score reports are packaged together for ease of purchasing.

FEATURES AND BENEFITS

- Correlates to specific components of the 2002 U.S. Code of Federal Regulations and the 2004 Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).

- Provides a standardized approach to help clinicians obtain a child's perspective of their functioning in IDEA areas.

- All three rating forms (Teacher, Parent, Self-Report) address the broad emotional and behavioral nuances of children who may require special education services for ED.

- Assesses social maladjustment separately from ED.

- Administer and score on PARiConnect.

- A Multirater Summary Report is available at no charge.

- Free training for the EDDT is available on PAR Training.

- Parent and Self-Report forms are available in Spanish.